

GET HIRED SMARTER: ESSENTIALS

Turn Your Job Hunt into a Strategic Sales Process

CORE MINDSET

- You are the Product: Treat your skills as features and the employer as the customer.
- The Goal: It is not just about having skills; it is about selling those skills effectively.
Companies hire for Personality, Clarity, and Communication, not just code.

1. The CV (Your Spec Sheet)

- Beat the Bot (ATS): Structure matters more than design. Use standard headings and keywords found in job descriptions.
- The Golden Rule: Maximum 1 Page for fresh graduates.
- Content Strategy:
 -  Avoid: Generic stories, "soft skills" lists without proof, typos.
 -  Do: Use numbers to quantify achievements (e.g., "Improved loading time by 20%").

2. LinkedIn (Your Billboard)

- Headline = Brand: Stop using "Computer Science Student." Use specific roles like "Fullstack Developer | MERN Stack Focused."
- Visibility: Your activity (comments, posts) is how you get noticed.
- Networking: Don't spam CVs. Comment with value, share projects, and build genuine relationships first.

3. The Interview (The Product Pitch)

- Preparation: Master the basics: "Tell me about yourself," "Why this company?", and "5-year vision."
- Body Language: Posture = Confidence. Maintain eye contact and offer a firm handshake.
- Mental Model: You are not being interrogated; you are pitching a solution to their problem.

4. The Roadmap

- Treat it like a job: Dedicate full days to specific tasks.
 - Day 1-2: Perfect the CV.
 - Day 3-4: Optimize LinkedIn.
 - Day 5-6: Send Applications.
 - Day 7: Interview Prep.
